This beautiful and unique house consists of six large attached yurt-shaped buildings around a central courtyard. Floor to ceiling double glazed windows frame sturdy scribbly gums, stringybarks and casuarinas. Native grasses, wild orchids and a variety of native wildflowers abound. Birds proliferate in the bush around the house; you may hear yellowtail and even black glossy cockatoos. Wrens, tree creepers, honeyeaters, wattle birds, choughs, crimson rosellas, king parrots, shrike thrush and a resident magpie family inhabit the gardens.

The sun-drenched central courtyard contains 2 native grass trees, a fig tree, lemonade and mandarin trees, and a native lime bush. It is an ideal spot for a...
